Net sales by region: Positive performance in Southern Europe (+11%) and in Northern & Central Europe (+14%) while net sales were slightly down in the United States at constant currency (-1% or +7% at reported currency)

The 11% increase year-over-year in Q1-19 net sales reflects positive growth in Southern Europe and in Northern & Central Europe. U.S. revenue was positively impacted by the foreign currency exchange rate in Q1-19. Net sales in the United States were slightly down (-1%) for the first quarter in local currency (US$).

Europe & International: Stallergenes Greer sales growth was primarily driven by France, for both Staloral and Oralair®. The company also increased its sales in Italy, Spain, Germany, Poland and Slovakia. Net sales increase in International markets (+28%) was primarily driven by Russia and Australia.

United States: In the United States, Stallergenes Greer net sales increased 7% in reported currency, delivering €22.5m in Q1-19, while being slightly down (-1%) at constant currency. The Group continued to strengthen its leadership position in the bulk allergen segment in this geography, while some of the adjacent businesses had a slower start to the year.

Net sales by category: Continued growth in the sublingual segment (+13%)
Staloral was Stallergenes Greer’s main growth driver in Q1-19, in particular in the French market. Additionally, Oralair net sales increased across all its major markets in Europe and International region, but had a slow start in the United States.

Sublingual products: in Q1-19, sublingual product sales increased by 13%, reaching €59.0 million, primarily driven by Staloral as a result of market share gains in priority markets, such as France. In parallel, in the tablet segment, the decline of the grass tablet market in the United States impacted Oralair’s performance in this geography.

Subcutaneous products: in the subcutaneous product category, the company reported Q1-19 net sales of €18.0 million, a 10% increase compared to Q1-18 thanks to a favorable US$ / Euro exchange rate, and despite a temporary shortage of injectable products in the Europe and International region as the Group pursued investments in major renovations and upgrades at its Antony facility.

Veterinary products: Q1-19 veterinary net sales grew 20% to €2.4 million compared to Q1-18, despite an increasingly competitive environment, through volume gains but also supported by a stronger US$ versus Euro foreign exchange rate.

Other products: net sales in the Other product line, which includes diagnostics and devices, declined by 10% quarter-over-quarter to €5.3 million in Q1-19, mostly due to a slower start of the adjacent businesses in the United States.
