Susanne Fiedler
Organon Chief Commercial Officer

Susanne Fiedler is chief commercial officer of Organon, responsible for driving the company’s business strategy and achieving its vision of a healthier every day for every woman around the world. She is working to ensure Organon is a company that listens and learns from women and other customers and engages with its key stakeholders through an efficient and differentiated operating model.

Susanne joins Organon from Merck, known as MSD outside the US and Canada, where she worked for more than two decades in marketing and sales roles with increasing responsibility. Most recently, she was the president of Europe and Canada for the commercial organization, where she drove double-digit income growth. Before that, she served as managing director of Australia and New Zealand and then Germany, reshaping and advancing the business in those countries. She has also served in global and regional positions across a number of different key therapeutic areas.

Susanne holds a Ph.D. in business administration and marketing from the University of Passau in Germany.

About Organon
Organon is a global healthcare company formed through a spinoff from Merck to focus on improving the health of women. It has a portfolio of more than 60 trusted medicines and products that address an entire spectrum of conditions women face. Led by the growing reproductive health portfolio coupled with an expanding biosimilars business and stable franchise of established medicines, Organon’s products produce strong cash flows that will support investments in future growth opportunities in women’s health. In addition, Organon will pursue opportunities to partner with biopharmaceutical innovators looking to commercialize their products by leveraging its scale and presence in fast-growing international markets. Organon has a global footprint with significant scale and geographic reach, world-class commercial capabilities, and approximately 10,000 employees with headquarters located in Jersey City, N.J.