

CITY HALL: SAVE THE EMBASSY HOTEL

City Hall says that homelessness is an emergency in Los Angeles.

Then why has the Embassy Hotel been empty since it was purchased by the Chetrit Group in 1998?

Why does City Hall allow billionaire Joseph Chetrit, a convicted felon, to hold such a valuable resource off the market while thousands die on the streets below?

The Embassy hotel is a 9-story building that can accommodate up to 330 units.

All of the empty hotel rooms in Downtown LA could house all of the currently homeless there.

Homelessness is not an incurable problem. The resources are readily available if we care to use them.

City Hall received more than $1 billion in Federal COVID relief and spent ZERO on housing those experiencing homelessness.

WHEN YOU ARE IN A HOLE, STOP DIGGING.
