RE: An Open Letter of Acknowledgement and Apology by Dr. Thierry Maison to Brainwave Science and its Directors, Management, Business Associates and Clients.

My name is Dr. Thierry Maison. I am a computer programmer and systems architect by profession. I previously maintained a business relationship with Brainwave Science, Inc. in Southborough, Massachusetts. I am writing this open letter of acknowledgement and apology to address certain wrongful actions directed toward Brainwave by myself which have harmed Brainwave and its Management, Directors, Business Associates and Clients.

I served as Chief Technology Officer for Brainwave Science, Inc. ("Brainwave") from June 2013 until February 2019. Brainwave is a Southborough, Massachusetts company which has developed a technology which it hopes will assist authorities in conducting humane questioning of subjects and exonerating wrongfully accused or convicted persons. This "Brain Fingerprinting" technology (now called iCognitive®) involves measuring brainwave ("P300") responses to ascertain whether certain information is or is not present within a person's brain. From June 2013 until February 2019, I led Brainwave's Development Team's efforts in refining the source code used by Brainwave's system. I also provided "back end" programming and served as the architect for Brainwave's user interfaces.

Upon my hire, I entered into an Employment Agreement, Non-Disclosure and Non-Competition Agreement and Confidentiality and Rights Agreement with Brainwave. Upon separation, I entered into a Separation Agreement with Brainwave wherein I explicitly acknowledged my ongoing obligations under the Employment Agreement, Non-Disclosure and Non-Competition Agreement and Confidentiality and Rights Agreements.

In early 2017, while I was still employed with Brainwave, I received a request from Brainwave's then-former Scientific Advisor, Dr. Lawrence A. Farwell, for assistance in developing his own version of the "Brain Fingerprinting" software. Dr. Farwell had been removed from company management in late 2016. I thereafter provided Dr. Farwell with copies of code I developed or improved while working for Brainwave. In 2019, following my separation from Brainwave, I was again contacted by Dr. Farwell with a request that I assist him with developing his own code. I thereafter implemented substantial portions of Brainwave's software in creating modifications to, and improvements of, Dr. Farwell's program.

In 2021, I was contacted by Brainwave in connection with their investigation regarding the theft of its intellectual property and trade secrets. During the course of their investigation, I admitted to providing Dr. Farwell with Brainwave's code in violation of my employment agreements. However, even after being confronted with evidence of my wrongdoing, I misrepresented the timing, manner and degree of my transgressions in an effort to minimize my own wrongful conduct.

My actions in providing all or portions of Brainwave's code to Dr. Farwell, as well as my misrepresenting and minimizing my own misconduct, were dishonest, unlawful and harmful to Brainwave and its management. I recognize and hereby acknowledge the wrongfulness of my actions. I deeply regret and hereby apologize for the harm I caused to Brainwave and its management, business associates and clients by my misrepresentations and violations of my contractual and legal obligations.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Thierry Maison", written over a horizontal line.
